

The military community is in crisis and our children are paying the price. Depression, addiction and suicide rates in our military dependents are rising and it must stop.

DASIUM can help.

Our unique and powerful approach to the growing crisis of teen depression, addiction and suicide is saving lives in communities across the nation. Why? Because:

- We get in front of the problem, bringing hope and support to families— BEFORE it's too late
- Our experts share real life experiences letting military families know they are not alone and that "It's OK to not be OK"
- We approach the topics from an honest two-point perspective
- Our message reduces the stigma surrounding mental/behavioral health
- We facilitate the community's ability to identify warning signs, unhealthy coping strategies and behaviors of at-risk dependents
- Our team inspires and encourages families to reach out and get the help and support they need

Whether it's in response to a crisis or a desire to approach prevention in a fresh way our programs and resources can fill the gaps and support your efforts. (Our speakers and experts include active-duty military family members.)

"The DASIUM team delivered a presentation that not only addressed a tough topic but provided the perfect mix of relevant information with insights gleaned from real life experience. Incredibly well done."

"DASIUM spoke about all the stuff people prefer to ignore but really needs to come to light to help someone who is struggling. Candid, open and honest."

"Many approach the issues of teen depression, addiction and suicide from a purely clinical framework. Very few carry the weight of personal experience."

ABOUT US

DASIUM was founded by Judy Davis, Geoffrey Davis and Sandy Fowler. They utilize the power of stories and their personal experience to deliver programs and resources that touch hearts and change lives.

Is Your Military Teen at Risk (Family Seminar)

(Perfect for service members and their families, military spouse groups, Family Readiness Groups, command sponsored events, family deployment / reintegration support and more.)

There isn't a more important conversation than the one that saves a life. In this engaging and informative presentation families gain insight from both the dependent and parent perspective, giving them tools to:

- Understand the overall situation and factors contributing to the rise of depression, addiction and suicide rates in the military community
- Identify the warning signs and behaviors of a teen at risk
- Know the difference between typical teen behavior and cause for concern
- Distinguish between healthy and unhealthy coping strategies
- Quickly assess a situation, determine the level of crisis and know what actions to take to get the appropriate level of help/support
- Open lines of communication and reach out to ask for help before it's too late

Live to Tell Your Story (Teen Seminar)

Sadly, suicide is a tragedy being experienced at military installations across the country. Should it touch yours we are ready to help.

In Live to Tell Your Story, Geoffrey Davis shares the story of his suicide attempt at college in a way that touches teens, identifying with their pain, giving them hope and showing them that treatment lifts the pain. This seminar:

- Provides healthy coping strategies and resources
- Encourages self-identification and early intervention
- Creates a safe, stigma-free environment that assures teens understand they are not alone and inspires them to reach out for help

Crisis on the Horizon (Seminar for Staff or Leadership)

(Great for command leadership, FRSA and Installation program creators, FRG leaders and more.)

Our leadership seminar provides insights and facts that help your staff understand the unique challenges military teens face today. We use a panel discussion format to lead a dynamic professional development that will have a lasting impact on your installation.

Tragedy Assistance Program

Our program is customizable and generally includes:

- The teen seminar Live to Tell Your Story—A Message of Hope
- The family seminar Is Your Military Teen at Risk?
- Staff and Leadership Seminar Crisis on the Horizon
- Copies of the book Warning Signs: A Parenting Guide to Discover if Your Teen is at Risk for Depression, Addiction or Suicide
- Resources for students identifying healthy coping skills, where to get help and emergency information
